HISTORY

The Old Curiosity Shop

From Porch Hobby to Passion Project

Our small craft business started as a hobby on an enclosed front porch in Schenectady, New York. We made small gifts for family and friends for holidays, birthdays, and other special celebrations. We always welcomed family members, children, and grand babies to help us. As their interest grew, they were they were always excited to help. It was a family affair!

A Growing Demand for Heartfelt Creations

The years went by and we started noticing a genuine market for our family's unique creations. That's when my wife and I got more creative with our collecting and crafting. People asked us to craft something truly from their own sentimental items - dry flowers from a wedding, a funeral, or other cherished events. These personalized pieces were a big hit!

Ready for the World!

We heard the calling loud and clear! We went to the courthouse, finalized our legalities, established our business name, set up our email, and launched our website. Now we are ready to share our work not just in the local markets, but to the entire WORLD !!!!!

MARKETING

Craft fairs and flea markets

We want to connect with our local customers by sharing our treasures directly with the community.

Online platform

Expansion of our reach allows us to connect beyond the local market, while adding a convenience factor to local customers, as well.

PRODUCT SOURCING

We give new life and meaning to the old by upcycling.

From New York to Maine... Everything we use has been found at markets, garage sales, and on trails while hiking the beautiful New England.

For the frames, we repurpose old pallets, chairs, and anything wood. No frames are bought.

We hike many miles along trails and beaches, collecting year round.

Bins, boxes, and totes are full of the treasures that we have collected.
Our inspiring prime material never runs out.
